FARM RELIEF MEASURE UP

House to Resume Consideration of McNary Bill.

MANY AMENDMENTS OFFERED

Opponents of Bill Plan to Attack It With Amendments, as on Saturday, When All Were Voted Down. World Court Proposal, Launched by Pennsylvania Senator, Not to Be Considered This Session.

Washington, May 26.—The house will resume consideration of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill on Wednesday, according to plans of leaders.

Opponents are expected to again attack the measure with a flood of amendments as on Saturday, when all efforts to amend were voted down. Three farm relief bills were offered as substitutes for the McNary bill, which would set up a corporation with a capital of $200,000,000, to market surplus farm products abroad, but all went out on points of order. Contrary to expectations of many members there was no attempt to kill the bill by offering a motion to strike out the enacting clause.

The senate has before it an amendment proposal for American membership in the world court as approved by the senate foreign relations committee.

The resolution requires that American membership be conditioned on amendment of the world court statute to divorce the tribunal completely from the league of nations, and providing in addition that this country reserve to itself the Monroe doctrine and others of its cherished policies. A vote on the resolution is not expected during the present session.

Senator Pepper (Rep., Pa.), who proposed the resolution, said it was based on the foundation laid down by President Harding and approved by President Coolidge. On the committee roll call it commanded the support of Chairman Lodge and all of the Republican irreconcilables but one, Senator Johnson of California alone leaving his party leadership to oppose it. Senator Shipstead of Minnesota, the Farmer-Labor member, also supported the proposal, but said he did not approve it and would lay before the senate shortly a peace plan of his own. The Democratic members opposed the Pepper plan and gave notice they would bring in a resolution designed to follow more closely the recommendations of the two Republican presidents. Their proposal, which provides for the reservations framed by Secretary Hughes, but not for amendment of the court statute itself, was voted down in the committee.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

To Be the Big Theme at Prohibition National Convention.

Columbus, May 26.—According to plans of the leaders, law enforcement is to be the outstanding theme of the fourteenth quadrennial national convention of the Prohibition party, to be held at Memorial hall here Thursday and Friday, June 5 and 6. This national meeting will be preceded by the Ohio state convention to be held on June 4. All sessions of the state meeting will be held at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

Revelations of alleged political graft and open disregard for law, as well as failure on the part of elected officials to enforce the laws, it is claimed, affords opportunity at the coming conventions for concerted action of the forces of the party.

The Deshler hotel will be convention headquarters. The convention proper will be called to order Thursday, June 5, at 10 a. m., by Virgil G. Hinshaw, chairman of the Prohibition national committee, and the keynote address will be delivered by H. P. Farris, who will assume the duties of temporary chairman.

Three former presidential candidates of the party will address the convention. They are Joshua Levering, 1896; Dr. Silas C. Swallow, 1904, and Aaron S. Watkins, 1920.

Claims Stock Given to Cox.

Columbus, May 26.—Attorney General Crabbe charged in a speech before the Buckeye Republican club that former Governor James M. Cox, candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, is the owner of stock in the Neil House company, now in the hands of a receiver, for which he did not pay a dollar. "He got it the same way others got it and it was not through a cash transaction," Crabbe charged.

English Professor Announces an Important Discovery.

London, May 26.—Dr. F. J. Wall of Sheffield university announces the discovery of "another death ray," similar to that discovered by Grindell Matthews. According to the scientists his discovery makes it possible to transmit electrical energy in any direction across space without the use of intermediate wires. Dr. Wall has applied for patents and is taking up his discovery with the ministry of the air.

France and Great Britain are engaged in a race to obtain patents and rights for the new "death ray" of Professor Matthews, who is a British subject. Professor Matthews was on the verge of signing an agreement with a French firm when he was recalled to England to consult with government officials. Friends of Professor Matthews are confident the government will purchase his device to prevent it from falling into the hands of France.

TAX MEASURE UP TO COOLIDGE

House to Accept Compromise by Big Majority.

VETO WOULD BE OVERRIDDEN

Series of Conferences With House Members Held by the President. Compromise Tax Bill Adopted by Senate 60 to 6—Reports That Mellon Is Likely to Resign Discredited at the Treasury.

Washington, May 26.—The compromise tax reduction bill is expected to be before President Coolidge tomorrow or Wednesday. Adoption by the house of the conference report by an overwhelming majority is assured.

The compromise was adopted by the senate Saturday by a vote of 60 to 6. The nonpartisan agreement on the tax compromise was emphasized by the fact that 39 Republicans and 39 Democrats joined hands in supporting the bill. The six negative votes were cast by Ernst, Frazier, Moses, Norris and Brookhart, Republicans, and Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Laborite.

Among the bill's supporters were found such administration senators as Lodge of Massachusetts, Curtis of Kansas, Smoot of Utah and Reed of Pennsylvania. Their votes merely confirmed the almost universal opinion at the capital that should President Coolidge yield to Secretary Mellon and veto the bill, such a bill will be overridden by literally an overwhelming majority.

President Coolidge initiated a series of conferences with house members. Among the conferees were Representatives Tilson of Connecticut and Mills of New York, two of those who have fought for the unmodified Mellon plan from the start. They both protested to the president against those provisions of the bill, notably those providing partial publicity for income tax returns, and the high estate taxes.

Mr. Mills told the president that if these features are once written into the law, they never will be repealed, for the reason that they carry a popular appeal, and that no congress will subsequently be found with the temerity to repeal them.

Reports that Secretary Mellon would carry his opposition to the bill to the point of retiring from the cabinet should the compromise bill become law were discredited at the treasury.

The Howell-Barkley bill to abolish the railroad labor board be called up again in the house this week, with proponents meantime seeking to obtain a special rule to give it right of way. This plan has been decided upon in the belief that the Republican organization intends to continue its opposition with a view to heading off a vote.

TO FIGHT HERESY CHARGE

Bishop William Brown of Gallion to Go on Trial Tomorrow.

Cleveland, May 26.—Bishop William M. Brown of Gallion, O., retired bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, will go to trial here tomorrow on the charge of heresy. One of the bishop's attorneys, Edward Bushnell of Cleveland, made a demand upon Bishop John Gardner Murray of Baltimore, president of the trial court of nine bishops, that he summon a group of modernists to testify regarding their doctrinal beliefs. This group includes Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, and Rev. William Guthrie, New York; Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester, Boston, and Rev. Thomas Hemmaway, Providence.

Bishop Brown's alleged heresy hangs upon interpretation of the Bible, he says. He admits he has been unorthodox in interpreting some passages of the Bible symbolically, rather than literally, but he contends that all the bishops interpret the Scriptures symbolically.

VETERANS HEAR COOLIDGE

Tribute Paid by President to Confederate Dead.

HE SPEAKS AT ARLINGTON

No Army Ever More Thoroughly Religious Than That Which Was Commanded by General Lee, the President Says—Bitterness of Conflict Softened by Time and Changed by Discretion, He Adds.

Washington, May 26.—President Coolidge delivered an address at the Confederate memorial day exercises at Arlington cemetery yesterday in which he paid tribute to the southern dead. He said:

"It is fitting that the Sabbath should be your memorial day. This follows from the belief that except for the forces of Oliver Cromwell, no army was ever more thoroughly religious than that which was commanded by General Lee. Moreover, these ceremonies necessarily are expressive of a hope and a belief that rise above the things of this life.

"It was Lincoln who pointed out that both sides prayed to the same God. When that is the case, it is only a matter of time when each will seek a common end. We can now see more clearly what that end is. It is the maintenance of our American form of government, of our American institutions, and of our American ideals, beneath a common flag, under the blessings of Almighty God.

"It was for this purpose that this nation was brought forth. Our whole course of history has been proceeding in that direction. Out of a common experience, made more enduring by a common sacrifice, we have reached a common conclusion. On this day we pause in memory of those who made their sacrifice in one way. In a few days we shall pause again in memory of those who made their sacrifice in another way. They were all Americans, all contending for what they believed were their rights.

"The bitterness of conflict is passed. Time has softened, discretion has changed it. Your country respects you for cherishing the memory of those who wore the gray. You respect others who cherish the memory of those who wore the blue. In that mutual respect may there be a firmer friendship and a stronger and more glorious union."

WOMEN WILL PLAY PROMINENT PART

Will Be Delegates to Big Political Conventions.

Washington, May 26.—Women will play a prominent part in the two big political meetings next month.

Every woman delegate to the Republican national convention at Cleveland will have a full vote. At the meeting of the Republican national committee last January the question of adding women to state delegations and giving each of them one-half vote was considered, and it was decided that the better plan would be to give the women chosen as delegates the same voting rights as men.

The Democratic national committee, on the other hand, in order to provide places for women on the delegations-at-large without disturbing party custom, recommended to the states that these delegations be increased from four to eight members, with one-half vote each, the extra four members to be women.

Under this system there will be actually more women sitting as delegates in the New York convention than in the Cleveland convention. Assuming that the Democrats in each one of the 48 states send four women delegates-at-large, each with a half vote, there will be 192 women delegates-at-large. A good many district women delegates already have been chosen by the Democrats, and it is roughly estimated that there will be at least 50 women district delegates.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Announced by the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

Columbus, May 26.—The Ohio Farm Bureau federation has announced a legislative program containing 10 principles which farmers of the state are expected to uphold.

This program, according to the announcement, is being forwarded to farmers in all parts of the state, with the request that the stand of every legislative candidate on it be obtained and considered in voting at the August primary. The program urges the following:

The writing of the principles of the Griswold debt law into the Ohio constitution.

Opposition to any attempt to weaken the provisions of the present Griswold debt law.

Favoring the enactment by the incoming legislature of a budget law for all taxing districts.

Enactment of a law providing for a gasoline tax sufficient to maintain and reconstruct the hard-surfaced roads of Ohio.

Adoption of a better program for eradication of bovine tuberculosis.

Reduction of assessments on property along improved highways to a maximum of 10 per cent.

Giving vacation control of children employed in agricultural pursuits to their parents.

Additional laws for reforestation of lands in Ohio.

Enactment of a law similar to the Indiana tax levy and debt control law.

STILL BREAKING RECORDS

Resources and Deposits of Ohio's 750 State Banks.

Columbus, May 26.—Ohio's 750 state banks continue to break records for resources and deposits. H. E. Scott, superintendent of banks, in a statement based on reports made to him under the recent call, announces that on March 31, 1924, resources of these banks totaled $1,760,693,168, a gain of $37,000,000 since the call of Dec. 31, 1923, and deposits of $1,510,467,090, a gain of $32,000,000. Savings deposits totaled $728,692,339, a gain of nearly $18,000,000. The growth in savings deposits shows that the people of Ohio are steadily increasing the amount of money they are putting away for a rainy day. Superintendent Scott says the reports filed by these banks under the recent call show them to be in a better condition than ever before in their history.

House to Accept Compromise by Big Majority.

VETO WOULD BE OVERRIDDEN

Series of Conferences With House Members Held by the President. Compromise Tax Bill Adopted by Senate 60 to 6—Reports That Mellon Is Likely to Resign Discredited at the Treasury.

Washington, May 26.—The compromise tax reduction bill is expected to be before President Coolidge tomorrow or Wednesday. Adoption by the house of the conference report by an overwhelming majority is assured.

The compromise was adopted by the senate Saturday by a vote of 60 to 6. The nonpartisan agreement on the tax compromise was emphasized by the fact that 30 Republicans and 30 Democrats joined hands in supporting the bill. The six negative votes were cast by Ernst, Frazier, Moses, Norris and Brookhart, Republicans, and Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Laborite.

Among the bill's supporters were found such administration senators as Lodge of Massachusetts, Curtis of Kansas, Smoot of Utah and Reed of Pennsylvania. Their votes merely confirmed the almost universal opinion at the capital that should President Coolidge yield to Secretary Mellon and veto the bill, such a bill will be overridden by literally an overwhelming majority.

President Coolidge initiated a series of conferences with house members. Among the conferees were Representatives Tilson of Connecticut and Mills of New York, two of those who have fought for the unmodified Mellon plan from the start. They both protested to the president against some features of the bill, notably those providing partial publicity for income tax returns, and the high estate taxes.

Mr. Mills told the president that if these features are once written into the law, they never will be repealed, for the reason that they carry a popular appeal, and that no congress will subsequently be found with the temerity to repeal them.

Reports that Secretary Mellon would carry his opposition to the bill to the point of retiring from the cabinet should the compromise bill become law were discredited at the treasury.

The Howell-Barkley bill to abolish the railroad labor board be called up again in the house this week, with proponents meantime seeking to obtain a special rule to give it right of way. This plan has been decided upon in the belief that the Republican organization intends to continue its opposition with a view to heading off a vote.

Bishop William Brown of Gallon to Go on Trial Tomorrow.

Cleveland, May 26.—Bishop William M. Brown of Gallon, O., retired bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, will go to trial here tomorrow on the charge of heresy. One of the bishops' attorneys, Edward Bushnell of Cleveland, made a demand upon Bishop John Gardner Murray of Baltimore, president of the trial court of nine bishops, that he summon a group of modernists to testify regarding their doctrinal beliefs. This group includes Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, and Rev. William Guthrie, New York; Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester, Boston, and Rev. Thomas Hemmaway, Providence.

Bishop Brown's alleged heresy hangs upon interpretation of the Bible, he says. He admits he has been unorthodox in interpreting some passages of the Bible symbolically, rather than literally, but he contends that all the bishops interpret the Scriptures symbolically.

VETERANS HEAR COOLIDGE

Tribute Paid by President to Confederate Dead.

HE SPEAKS AT ARLINGTON

No Army Ever More Thoroughly Religious Than That Which Was Commanded by General Lee, the President Says—Bitterness of Conflict Softened by Time and Changed by Discretion, He Adds.

Washington, May 26.—President Coolidge delivered an address at the Confederate memorial day exercises at Arlington cemetery yesterday in which he paid tribute to the southern dead. He said:

"It is fitting that the Sabbath should be your memorial day. This follows from the belief that except for the forces of Oliver Cromwell, no army was ever more thoroughly religious than that which was commanded by General Lee. Moreover, these ceremonies necessarily are expressive of a hope and a belief that rise above the things of this life.

"It was Lincoln who pointed out that both sides played to the same God. When that is the case, it is only a matter of time when each will seek a common end. We can now see more clearly what that end is. It is the maintenance of our American form of government, of our American institutions, and of our American ideals, beneath a common flag, under the blessings of Almighty God.

"It was for this purpose that this nation was brought forth. Our whole course of history has been proceeding in that direction. Out of a common experience, made more enduring by a common sacrifice, we have reached a common conclusion. On this day we pause in memory of those who made their sacrifice in one way. In a few days we shall pause again in memory of those who made their sacrifice in another way. They were all Americans, all contending for what they believed were their rights.

"The bitterness of conflict is passed. Time has softened, discretion has changed it. Your country respects you for cherishing the memory of those who wore the gray. You respect others who cherish the memory of those who wore the blue. In that mutual respect may there be a firmer friendship and a stronger and more glorious union."

WOMEN WILL PLAY PROMINENT PART

Will Be Delegates to Big Political Conventions.

Washington, May 26.—Women will play a prominent part in the two big political meetings next month.

Every woman delegate to the Republican national convention at Cleveland will have a full vote. At the meeting of the Republican national committee last January the question of adding women to state delegations and giving each of them one-half vote was considered, and it was decided that the better plan would be to give the women chosen as delegates the same voting rights as men.

The Democratic national committee, on the other hand, in order to provide places for women on the delegations at-large without disturbing party custom, recommended to the states that these delegations be increased from four to eight members, with one-half vote each, the extra four members to be women.

Under this system there will be actually more women sitting as delegates in the New York convention than in the Cleveland convention. Assuming that the Democrats in each one of the 48 states send four women delegates-at-large, each with a half vote, there will be 192 women delegates-at-large. A good many district women delegates already have been chosen by the Democrats, and it is roughly estimated that there will be at least 50 women district delegates.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Announced by the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

Columbus, May 26.—The Ohio Farm Bureau federation has announced a legislative program containing 10 principles which farmers of the state are expected to uphold.

This program, according to the announcement, is being forwarded to farmers in all parts of the state, with the request that the stand of every legislative candidate on it be obtained and considered in voting at the August primary. The program urges the following:

The writing of the principles of the Griswold debt law into the Ohio constitution.

Opposition to any attempt to weaken the provisions of the present Griswold debt law.

Favoring the enactment by the incoming legislature of a budget law for all taxing districts.

Enactment of a law providing for a gasoline tax sufficient to maintain and reconstruct the hard-surfaced roads of Ohio.

Adoption of a better program for eradication of bovine tuberculosis.

Reduction of assessments on property along improved highways to a maximum of 10 per cent.

Giving vacation control of children employed in agricultural pursuits to their parents.

Additional laws for reforestation of lands in Ohio.

Enactment of a law similar to the Indiana tax levy and debt control law.

Resources and Deposits of Ohio's 750 State Banks.

SEE CLOSE KINSHIP OF MAN AND GORILLA

Scientists Exhibit Fragments of Ancient Jawbones.

New York.—Dr. W. K. Gregory and Dr. Milo Hellman exhibited to the New York Academy of Science at the American Museum of Natural History recently these fragments of ancient jaw-bones which belonged, they said, to the common ancestor of men, gorillas, chimpanzees, and other primates, or else to a very close relative of that common ancestor.

The jawbones belonged to the dryopithecus, or forest ape, which lived in the Siwalik hills in India in miocene times several million years ago. The fossils were found for the museum by Barnum Brown. They have been studied for more than a year by Doctors Gregory and Hellman and this announcement was their first publication of the discovery of evidence that the dryopithecus was man's and the gorilla's lineal forefather, or else a first cousin of that forefather.

Dryopithecus was a big ape, about the size of a gorilla. The evidence that it is the ancestor, or the closest approach yet known to the ancestor of the whole human and ape family, is based largely on the patterns of the teeth. The elevations and furrows on the crowns of the teeth follow patterns identical with those of the Neanderthal and other primitive men, and nearly identical with those of Australian blacks and certain Indians who are the most primitive of living humans.

Civilized white and yellow men have lived for so many thousand years on a diet based on agricultural food that great alterations in their teeth have taken place, so that the cusps and grooves differ from those of the Neanderthal teeth.

The seeds of dental trouble for the human race were sown in the days of dryopithecus, an arguable number of years ago, according to Doctor Hell-man, who pointed out that the elevations, or cusps, had expanded till they met over the grooves, causing tunnels which are inherited today by the human race.

Writer Calls Roast Dog, Dog-Tail Soup Delicious

Portland.—There has been much discussion pertaining to the lowly dog.
Some of the articles amuse me, while others anger me.

We are all God's creatures, but none of us are perfect. We can at least have an unselfish regard for other living things.

To some people dogs are just dogs,
while to me each dog has a meaning all its own.

The writer was born on an Indian reservation and had the constant companionship of dogs from early childhood. He knows them for their true value.

During feast days, which is our Thanksgiving, a nice well-roasted dog is palatable beyond any degree of comprehension unless one has partaken of it. For instance, the bulldog is very tough and gristly, but the type known as the Siberian fishhound is very edible and tender.

I can well recall a dog feast at which we ate as many as 75 dogs, and a bowl of dog-tail soup is wonderful beyond description. If some of the people who brand dogs as pets would try a little roasted or fried dog dogs would not be permitted to roam at large unescorted, inasmuch as their lives would be at stake, and instead of neighbors fighting over them the situation would be entirely reversed—they would fight for them.

The lowly mongrel yellow dog would become as much respected as our Thanksgiving turkey.

"Jazz Spirit" Is Blamed for Suicides in the U. S.

New York.—Placing the number of deaths by suicide in the United States last year at between 15,000 and 16,000, Dr. Harry M. Warren, president of the Save-a-Life league, in his annual report attributed the majority of efforts at self-destruction to the "jazz spirit
of the times."

"During the last five years," Mr.
Warren said, "about 4,000 children between the ages of five and eighteen have been on the suicide list. One girl made twelve different attempts to die.
Most of these young people ended their lives because of unhappy home conditions, unpleasant school experiences, youthful marriages and the jazz spirit
of the times."

Statistics gathered by the league show that among the suicides last year were 61 physicians, 48 lawyers and judges, 14 ministers, 64 bankers, 72 brokers, 43 actors, 26 editors and writers and 110 presidents and owners of large business concerns.

Oldest Living Horse in World Owned by Pastor

Catawissa, Pa.—After viewing the approach of spring with apparent nonchalance, Clover, reputed to be the oldest living horse in the world, is nearing his fifty-first birthday on the farm of a local clergyman.

The rigors of winter had no effect on the old horse, for his owner provided him with a special box stall lined with straw and a double blanket.
Regular exercise every day and warm food are said to have helped him weather the dangerous season.

Clover still boasts a full mane and all his teeth. His body is without a blemish. Such is his fame that he now enjoys a pension from the Jockey club of New York.

Becket Was Murdered by the King's Knights

Thomas a Becket was the archbishop of Canterbury and a great advocate of church rights, even defending the church against Henry II, whose partisan he had formerly been. Henry II was overheard to pray "to be rid of this turbulent priest." Accordingly four knights murdered the archbishop in the Canterbury cathedral December 29, 1170.

Becket was canonized by the church and Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" were told of a pilgrimage to his shrine, which formerly existed in Trinity chapel, Canterbury cathedral, England. It contained the bones of the martyr-bishop, removed thither from the crypt of the cathedral in 1220, and remained for three centuries the object of one of the famous pilgrimages of Christendom.

In 1538 Henry VIII despoiled and demolished the shrine, caused Becket's name to be stricken from the calendar and ordered his bones to be burned and scattered to the winds. The pavement of the chapel and the stone steps that lead up to the place where the shrine formerly stood are worn by the knees of countless pilgrims.—Detroit

"Pinxit" is a Latin verb and means
"he painted it." Especially in the period of the Renaissance it was cus-

The seeds of dental trouble for the human race were sown in the days of dryopithecus, an arguable number of years ago, according to Doctor Hellman, who pointed out that the elevations, or cusps, had expanded till they met over the grooves, causing tunnels which are inherited today by the human race.

Writer Calls Roast Dog, Dog-Tail Soup Delicious

Portland.—There has been much discussion pertaining to the lowly dog. Some of the articles amuse me, while others anger me.

We are all God's creatures, but none of us are perfect. We can at least have an unselfish regard for other living things.

To some people dogs are just dogs, while to me each dog has a meaning all its own.

The writer was born on an Indian reservation and had the constant companionship of dogs from early childhood. He knows them for their true value.

During feast days, which is our Thanksgiving, a nice well-roasted dog is palatable beyond any degree of comprehension unless one has partaken of it. For instance, the bulldog is very tough and gristly, but the type known as the Siberian fishhound is very edible and tender.

I can well recall a dog feast at which we ate as many as 75 dogs, and a bowl of dog-tail soup is wonderful beyond description. If some of the people who brand dogs as pets would try a little roasted or fried dog dogs would not be permitted to roam at large unescorted, inasmuch as their lives would be at stake, and instead of neighbors fighting over them the situation would be entirely reversed—they would fight for them.

The lowly mongrel yellow dog would become as much respected as our Thanksgiving turkey.

"Jazz Spirit" Is Blamed for Suicides in the U. S.

New York.—Placing the number of deaths by suicide in the United States last year at between 15,000 and 16,000, Dr. Harry M. Warren, president of the Save-a-Life league, in his annual report attributed the majority of efforts at self-destruction to the "jazz spirit of the times."

"During the last five years," Mr. Warren said, "about 4,000 children between the ages of five and eighteen have been on the suicide list. One girl made twelve different attempts to die. Most of these young people ended their lives because of unhappy home conditions, unpleasant school experiences, youthful marriages and the jazz spirit of the times."

Statistics gathered by the league show that among the suicides last year were 61 physicians, 48 lawyers and judges, 14 ministers, 64 bankers, 72 brokers, 43 actors, 26 editors and writers and 110 presidents and owners of large business concerns.

Oldest Living Horse in World Owned by Pastor

Catawissa, Pa.—After viewing the approach of spring with apparent nonchalance, Clover, reputed to be the oldest living horse in the world, is nearing his fifty-first birthday on the farm of a local clergyman.

The rigors of winter had no effect on the old horse, for his owner provided him with a special box stall lined with straw and a double blanket. Regular exercise every day and warm food are said to have helped him weather the dangerous season.

Clover still boasts a full mane and all his teeth. His body is without a blemish. Such is his fame that he now enjoys a pension from the Jockey club of New York.

Becket Was Murdered by the King's Knights

Thomas a Becket was the archbishop of Canterbury and a great advocate of church rights, even defending the church against Henry II, whose partisan he had formerly been. Henry II was overheard to pray "to be rid of this turbulent priest." Accordingly four knights murdered the archbishop in the Canterbury cathedral December 29, 1170.

Becket was canonized by the church and Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" were told of a pilgrimage to his shrine, which formerly existed in Trinity chapel, Canterbury cathedral, England. It contained the bones of the martyr-bishop, removed thither from the crypt of the cathedral in 1220, and remained for three centuries the object of one of the famous pilgrimages of Christendom.

In 1538 Henry VIII despoiled and demolished the shrine, caused Becket's name to be stricken from the calendar and ordered his bones to be burned and scattered to the winds. The pavement of the chapel and the stone steps that lead up to the place where the shrine formerly stood are worn by the knees of countless pilgrims.—Detroit News.

Meaning of Pinxit

"Pinxit" is a Latin verb and means "he painted it." Especially in the period of the Renaissance it was customary to use this word in signing a canvas, just as master violin makers used the word "faciebat," meaning "he made it."

HERRICK REFRIGERATORS

HERRICK DRY AIR SYSTEM REFRIGERATOR

The Big Difference In Refrigerators

The main object of any refrigerator, of course, is the preservation of foods. The refrigerator that will keep foods in perfect condition longest is naturally the refrigerator you want—provided it doesn't increase your ice bills.

The Herrick answers those requirements with facts—not claims. And it does even more. It actually decreases your ice bills while giving you more effective food preservation.

And why? Simply because the Herrick is far more than an ice box—far more than a cold storage place. It is built on the scientifically demonstrated principle that more than merely cold air is necessary to keep foods in good condition for any great length of time.

Perhaps the biggest essentials to scientifically correct refrigeration are—

- No. 1. Circulation of cold dry air.
- No. 2. Effective insulation.
- No. 3. Air-tight construction.

That the Herrick has these necessary essentials is a demonstrated fact.

Many proofs of the truth are visible even to the least informed purchaser. Others are hidden within the walls of the refrigerator, but nevertheless there, performing their functions so important to good health and economy.

SEEK TO IMPORT ILLITERATE LABOR

A few selfish American business interests are seeking to import an "illiterate-labor class" as virtual slaves, Garland W. Powell, director of Americanism of the American Legion, charged in Atlanta, Ga. Powell's declaration was made during the course of an address before an illiteracy conference called by the Legion for the state of Georgia.

The Legion man read a letter from a New York commercial organization which stated that the board wanted this country to admit illiterate immigrants. "If we exclude all illiterates, we would be without labor," the letter said.

Powell said these people seek to establish a condition of industrial slavery. He declared that they attempted to explain away their attitude by saying that without illiterates the nation would be without labor, when the fact really is that they desire illiterates so that they can have unintelligent, unthinking labor. Powell further charged that such interests were seeking to increase immigration so that they might enjoy the swollen profits that otherwise would in some measure go to intelligent labor. He added that such a move would lower the standards of education and living.

The letter to which he referred said, in part:

"We notice . . . the slogan in the first page of your leaflet which reads as follows: 'No Illiteracy by 1927.' It is not quite clear what this slogan means. If it means that no illiterates are to be admitted into the United States as immigrants, it raises a serious question and the board would not approve such stoppage. The labor class is one that we do not raise in the United States; it must be imported. If we exclude all illiterates, we would be without labor."

This idea, according to Mr. Powell, means that a large section of business believes that America does not believe in the dignity of labor. It believes that America must go on and on, importing "the scum and riff-raff of Europe, until the majority of our people is composed of scum and riff-raff."

These things, he declared, are absolutely opposed by the American Legion. He argued that under present immigration laws of America, foreign nations make sure that the emigrants leaving their shores are of a low type of humanity, almost impossible of assimilation here.

Agree on Site for New War Memorial in Boston

Site for a World war memorial in Boston, to be built from surplus funds from the state bonus has been agreed on by veterans' societies. This has ended long discussion by members of the American Legion and other organizations extending over nearly two years.

A contention of certain veterans was that the funds be redistributed proportionately to the towns from whence the money came. About $2,000,000 remains in the fund, and it has been voted by representatives of the societies that the money shall be expended on a state shrine, in no way devoted to utilitarian purposes. The location settled on, according to the recent conference, is to be next to the state house, bounded by Mt. Vernon and Beacon streets from north to south and by the state house and Joy street from east to west.

Community Homes to Be Built in California

Construction of American Legion homes in eight different communities in Contra Costa county, California, will be started this spring. According to Morgan Keaton, department adjutant of the organization, the appropriation of $240,000 will be necessary for this work and approximately $13,000 will be allocated to each community.

Under the California law, recently upheld by the State Supreme court, a county is given authority to set aside such funds for erection of a community home for use of veterans, once all the money is paid into the county treasury. The act was passed in 1921. The erection of the homes is under direction of the county boards of supervisors and groups of veterans in each county.

Dig Through Snow to Visit Veteran Patients

Heavy snowstorms completely isolated the Sunnyrest sanitarium for disabled ex-service men near Racine, Wis. As members of the Legion's sick committee from the Racine post had previously announced that they would visit the sanitarium on a certain date, they set out through the snow to fill the engagement in order that the patients might have the little items of personal comfort prepared by the Legion. Two of the men, Eli Hannon and Lester Bowman, were forced to shovel snow more than half a mile in order to get their car through, but they arrived at the time set, and brought first news of the outside world to the veteran patients in several days.

Tree in New Jersey Wears Old Felt Hat

A tree has been discovered that wears a hat. It is a felt hat and a good deal remains of it, considering that from all indications the tree has been wearing it for the last twenty-five years. In a swamp near Chatham, N. J., stands the 20-foot cedar that claims the distinction.

The hat circles the trunk of the cedar at a height of about five feet from the ground. The trunk pushes straight up through the crown of the hat for 15 feet and a pair of sturdy branches grown out since the tree impaled the hat are at a distance of about a foot above it.

Despite its age and weather-beaten green hue, the hat remains in excellent condition and, according to the opinion of a manufacturer, in its present position will last indefinitely. A tree expert, in trying to ascertain the length of time the hat had girdled the cedar's four-inch trunk, made comparisons by use of a trunk section of similar dimensions. His measurements showed a growth of about an eighth of an inch in the trunk a year, from which he estimated that it would take more than fifty years for the cedar to enlarge sufficiently to break through the hat and cause it to fall.

The make of hat worn so long by the cedar is not disclosed.—New York Times.

Oil to Protect Tracks

To stop rust on railroad tracks and make the steel fixtures last as long as the chemically treated ties, an eastern road has worked out a plan of oiling its rails, track bolts, tie plates, and other fittings of like character. The cost of putting on this coating is not high, and the saving effected on any one item of the track structure is said to justify the practice.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

All Were Rotten

The foreman of a Lancashire mill instructed one of the hands to test the incandescent gas mantles in the weaving sheds and find out how many required renewing. Eventually he returned to report that 97 new mantles were required. "What?" exclaimed the foreman. "Why, we've only got 97 lights altogether." "Well, I tried 'em all," said the lad; "and every one I squeezed was rotten and fell to bits."

The Big Difference In Refrigerators

The main object of any refrigerator, of course, is the preservation of foods. The refrigerator that will keep foods in perfect condition longest is naturally the refrigerator you want—provided it doesn't increase your ice bills.

The Herrick answers those requirements with facts—not claims. And it does even more. It actually decreases your ice bills while giving you more effective food preservation.

And why? Simply because the Herrick is far more than an ice box—far more than a cold storage place. It is built on the scientifically demonstrated principle that more than merely cold air is necessary to keep foods in good condition for any great length of time.

Perhaps the biggest essentials to scientifically correct refrigeration are—

- No. 1. Circulation of cold dry air.
- No. 2. Effective Insulation.
- No. 3. Air-tight construction.

That the Herrick has these necessary essentials is a demonstrated fact.

Many proofs of the truth are visible even to the least informed purchaser. Others are hidden within the walls of the refrigerator, but nevertheless there, performing their functions so important to good health and economy.

FIRST SILK HAT

Created a Near Riot in London, England, in 1797.

What is it about a hat that causes popular interest and excitement out of all proportions? A straw hat worn a week or so earlier in the spring than the date on which it is generally adopted? Of a silk hat in a frontier community? Why should it make any difference to anyone else what a person wears on his head? Every man's hat is, apparently, a matter of public concern, and a small sized riot can be started almost anywhere by someone wearing unusual headgear. January 15, 1797, John Hetherington, haberdasher in the Strand, London, put on a new style hat which he had decided to introduce to the public and stepped out into the street. Instantly the first silk hat and its wearer were surrounded by an excited crowd, which soon grew to such alarming proportions that the authorities were compelled to take a hand and disperse it. Next day the haberdasher was brought before the lord mayor, accused of "walking down a public highway wearing upon his head a tall structure having a shining luster and calculated to alarm timid people." — Kansas City Star.

HIGH SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

Of Walnut Township Ended Friday Night With Alumni Banquet.

Dr. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Delivered Class Address and Superintendent M. C. Warren Presented Diplomas—Patrons Showed Loyalty.

The commencement activities of Walnut township high school began Friday night April 25, with the Junior-Senior banquet. At this time the juniors demonstrated their ability as hosts. If they keep the same spirit of service thruout life their community will be better because they live in it. The senior play was given Wednesday and Thursday nights, May 14 and 15, to a crowded house. The receipts were $170.20. Out of this fund the seniors paid for the glass banking boards for the gymnasium and purchased some pictures for the study hall. These are fine memorials left to the school by the class of 1924. May such a spirit ever hover over Walnut high.

Sunday night, May 18, Rev. E. K. Johnson delivered a most excellent sermon to the graduating class. The solos sung by Miss Lorena G. Roberts and Mrs. E. K. Johnson were very much enjoyed by all.

Tuesday afternoon the high school faculty and seniors had a picnic at the Columbus storage dam. In the evening the faculty took the seniors to "The Cat and the Canary" at Keith's theater.

Wednesday morning, May 21, the grade children gave a program to a crowded house. The eighth grade pupils received their promotion certificates to the high school. Judge E. A. Brown delivered the address of the morning. At 12 o'clock the mothers, wives and sisters served a most sumptuous dinner to about 1000 people. In the afternoon the high school boys trimmed the "Dads" to the tune of 15 to 7. Come again, "Dads."

Thursday night the regular high school commencement exercises were held. Dr. S. S. Palmer, pastor of the Broad street Presbyterian church, Columbus, delivered a very fine address to a crowded house. County Superintendent M. C. Warren presented the diplomas in very appropriate and well selected words. The high school girls chorus furnished the music which was very much enjoyed and appreciated by all.

Friday night, May 23, fourteen members of the class of 1923 and nine members of the class of 1924, had their first alumni banquet. Superintendent O. C. Crawford was toast master and chairman of the organization of "The Walnut Township Alumni association." A constitution was adopted and the following officers elected: President, Howard Hinson; vice president, Roy Thompson; secretary-treasurer, Miss Ruth Lindsey. A very fine banquet was prepared by Mrs. William Hay and Mrs. D. E. Brinker and the Misses Thompson. Toasts were given and all pledged their loyalty to the association and the high school. Miss Lorena Hay, Ivy Coleman and Esther Goldsberry were largely responsible for the success of the launching of the association.

The patrons of the school have shown their loyalty by the fine support they gave the school both by attending programs and events and by their financial support. The following amounts were raised by the different activities:

Lecture course$592 00
Senior class play 170 00
Christmas seals 56 00
Harding memorial 14 00
Athletics, about 260 00
Seed sale 138 00
Hot lunches 625 00

Besides the above activities the Parent-Teachers association raised over $240. Also the superintendent collected for books and school supplies over $1300 this year and about the same amount last year. Can you find any community that has been more loyal in its support?

MAY FESTIVAL.

Be sure and attend the May festival and concert Tuesday evening, May 27, at 7:30 o'clock at the Methodist church. After the concert in the auditorium the children will give a May Pole drill in the basement with the May Queen and her attendants. There will be for sale in the basement home made cakes, pies, cookies, crullers, ice cream, lemonade and candies. There will be a fish pond for the youngsters. Tickets are 35 cents.

Important Date in History.

On the tenth of October in 1945, the United States Naval academy at Annapolis was opened. George Bancroft, the historian, who was then secretary of the navy, was largely instrumental in establishing the academy.

FAMOUS BELLS

Mingled in Public Demonstrations in Boston for 175 Years.

Old North or Christ church, first occupied about 1723, is said to be the oldest church still standing in Boston. After the completion of its massive brick spire in 1740, the rector determined upon the purchase of a "ring" or chime of bells.

Accordingly, arrangements were made with the foundry of Rudhall at Gloucester, England, which cast the celebrated bells of St. Martins in the Fields, London, and other famous "peals," to mold and ship a suitable chime of bells and a bond therefor in the sum of 1,100 pounds was executed. The bells were carefully and skillfully made shipped and laid down in Boston in the early summer of 1745. There were eight bells in the set—the smallest being a six-inch bell, while the largest weighed about 1400 pounds. The bells were raised to their places in the great tower with a care extraordinary—lest some danger might befall them, and as their voices floated out thru the spacious arches of their lofty belfry and filled the air with their tuneful and mellow sounds, great indeed was the gladness in the hearts of the officers and members of the church, for, in the slang of the present day, they were some bells.

Altho cast by hand before the advent of modern mechanical contrivances and advance chemical practices, these bells are of remarkable quality and the secret of their superior sweetness and the unusually great carrying power of their tones remains an unsolved mystery.

These musical bells kept company with one of the signal lights one April night in 1775, when Paul Revere took his famous ride toward Lexington to inform the populace of the movement of British troops; again, on that history making June day of the same year they looked out upon the Battle of Bunker Hill—across the Charles river and in 1804 they narrowly escaped destruction when their tower house was wrecked by a storm. Luckily, however, altho made almost two centuries ago—the first chimes cast for use in these United States—they have come down to us in perfect condition, with a record unmatched by any other set of bells in this country, in that for more than 175 years no public demonstration has taken place in Boston in which their harmonious voices have not mingled.

CULTIVATING CORN INCREASES YIELDS.

Frequent cultivation of corn increases the yield by conserving moisture, keeping down weeds and probably by increasing the nitrates in the soil.

The average yield of cultivated plots in a field at the Ohio experiment station in 1923 was 55.7 bushels per acre and of adjacent uncultivated plots from which the young weeds were kept scraped off without disturbing the soil was 42.7 bushels, a difference of 13 bushels per acre or 30 per cent in favor of cultivation. In 1922, when the rainfall was abundant and well distributed, the difference was three bushels in favor of cultivation.

Agronomists at the station attribute the larger yields on the cultivated land for the most part to the conservation of moisture which results from shallow cultivation soon after rains. The accumulation of nitrates was somewhat greater on the cultivated soil and may account in part for the increased yields.

Both cultivated and uncultivated plots were kept free from weeds, as it is well known that they rob the crop of fertility and moisture thus reducing yields.

Learned Her Lesson.

A friend of ours was a collector for a lodge. His little daughter was in the habit of accepting pennies from the members. Her mother chastised her and told her she must not accept pennies any more. So the next day, when one of the members offered her a penny, she said: "I can't take pennies; I can only take nickels and dimes." — Exchange.

Malay Archipelago.

When you leave the east coast of Africa, you strike across the Indian ocean, following the equator, which cuts Sumatra and Borneo in halves. It is in the forests of those great islands that our somewhat less near relatives, the orang-outangs, reside. HONOR THE VETERANS.

They heard the call of Lincoln and they gave
To God and home and native land their best;
True patriots, they, so noble and so brave—
Ne'er feared the foe, nor failed in any test.

On battlefield, in prison, and in camp
They yielded up their lives, a sacrifice
To save the land; the very ground was damp
With their spilled blood; they paid the awful price.

Peace they restored; the bondmen they set free;
Repaired the breach and forged again the tie
That, from the lakes to gulf, and sea to sea
Binds all the states in glorious unity.

What their reward? What guerdon shall they gain?
How may we best our gratitude bestow?
How pay the debt of suffering and of pain?
How yield the palm and how the honors show?

This may we do, our loyalty to prove to men to whom we stand in heavy debt—
Live as they lived; honor the land we love;
Stand fast; be true; our duty ne'er forget.

OHIO'S PART

In Convention Which Nominated Abraham Lincoln for Presidency.

With two national political conventions approaching, McClure's Magazine for June recalls what was in many respects the most important convention in history—the Republican convention of 1860. The story of that convention, which selected Abraham Lincoln as the party standard bearer, is told by a delegate who cast his vote for the rail splitter—Addison G. Proctor, of Kansas.

To the 466 delegates who met in Chicago, Proctor says, Lincoln was one of several "native son" candidates and was conceded but slight chance of nomination.

William H. Seward, senator from New York and a former governor of that state was the outstanding candidate. He had pledged to him within 60 votes of a majority.

Vermont asked the nomination of Senator Jacob Collimer, New Jersey presented Senator William L. Dayton, Pennsylvania offered Senator Simon Cameron, Ohio had Salmon P. Chase, Missouri, Judge Edward Bates and Illinois had a united delegation for Abraham Lincoln.

"There were 466 votes and 234 were required for nomination," Proctor relates. "The first ballot showed Lincoln receiving about 80 votes and Seward 183, within 50 of nomination. On the second ballot the votes of the favorite sons drifted toward Lincoln, giving him a hundred more.

"At the third ballot the favorite son voters drifted still more toward Lincoln. As we kept tally we discovered Lincoln was within three and a half votes of nomination. As the chairman was about to announce the result, Judge Carter of Cleveland, a pock-marked fellow with a voice like a bull rose and shouted: "Ohio will change three or four votes from Chase to Lincoln." That nominated Lincoln."

Horace Greeley had been opposed to Lincoln. One of the Kansas delegates asked the editor his opinion of Lincoln and this was his reply, according to Proctor:

"Lincoln is a very adroit politician. He has an interesting history that would make good campaign literature. But the trouble with Lincoln is this: he has had no experience in national affairs, and facing a crisis as we are now, I doubt if such a nomination would be acceptable. It is too risky an undertaking."

Fate of "First of the Tribunes."

On the eighth of October in 1354 Rienzi, the Italian patriot, who headed a revolution at Rome which overthrew the power of the aristocracy, was killed. He had been placed at the head of the Roman government under the title of tribune of the people. His success went to his head and he was finally killed in a riot which his ill-considered conduct had provoked.

Find Salt Effective in Killing Barberry

Chemicals to Play Important Part in Eradication.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Chemicals will play an important part this year in the eradication campaign against the common barberry, which aids the spread of black stem rust to the wheat fields. Where only the digging method has been practiced it was difficult to remove all the roots, especially in rocky ground or around tree stumps. Where even the smallest fragments of the roots were not destroyed, sprouts have sprung up the following year, necessitating a repetition of the work. In lawns or gardens where a careful watch can be kept of the places from which bushes have been removed, digging is all right, for in a year or two all roots left at the first digging will have sprouted and can be removed.

To make the eradication of the bushes simple and sure, two chemicals have been found by the United States Department of Agriculture to be effective for use in such places as pastures and wooded lots and along fences where it is difficult either to dig bushes up completely or to locate the exact spots in a resurvey. Of these two, common or crushed rock salt is very satisfactory. Ten pounds of salt piled on the crown will kill a bush of average size. It should be applied to the bush as dry salt and may be used at any season of the year with success. The bushes either may be left standing or cut down. If left standing, they are easily located and the necessity of re-treatment more easily determined.

Deadly Turkey Disease Is Traced to Chickens

Recent research indicates that chickens and turkeys—especially turkeys—will not thrive when raised together within comparatively close quarters and small field range. It has been found that blackhead, which is said by investigators to be responsible for 90 per cent of losses among growing turkeys, may be produced in the poult by feeding them the eggs of a small worm found in the blind gut of chickens. The germ which causes blackhead may and does live in the eggs of the common intestinal worm of hens.

"Even turkeys sick with blackhead are not so dangerous to their kind," says Dr. W. A. Billings of the agricultural extension staff, University of Minnesota, "as are common hens or the soil on which the hens are raised. The turkeys should be hatched and raised where they will not come in contact with chickens or chicken yards, for it is possible to produce blackhead in chickens by simply feeding them contaminated soil from a hen yard."

Damp weather and early morning dews do not cause blackhead, according to investigators. This upsets a theory long maintained by some poultrymen. In order to contract the disease the turkeys must get the germ, and the fact is established that they often do get it by eating the eggs of the chicken intestinal worm. Doctor Billings says the way to raise turkeys successfully is to protect them from infection which they get from chickens and chicken yards.

Green Feed Required for Summer Feeding

There is probably no feed which exceeds good pasture grass for economical milk production. To be sure, the highest records of milk and butterfat have not been made on a grass ration, but in economy of production, grass ranks first.

Good grass is not available during all of the summer months. Even though the cows are pastured over a large area containing plenty of grass, there are times in late summer when it becomes dry and of poor quality. If milk production is to be maintained, some provision must be made to furnish the dairy cows a green, succulent ration other than grass during such a period. The soiling system has come to be used rather generally in many dairy sections.

Watch Young Plants Carefully for Bugs

Watch young plants carefully for insects. If aphids appear on cabbage and cauliflower, the infested plants should be removed and the aphids destroyed. If the aphids are wide spread over the plants, they should be sprayed with a nicotine solution. Dust cabbage plants with arsenate of lead to destroy the worms.

Alfalfa and Clovers Sources of Nitrogen

Red and alsike clover, as well as alfalfa and sweet clover, have been found to supply 75 to more than 100 pounds more available nitrogen for a following grain crop than does a non-legume, according to one state agricultural college. These legumes are said to be the cheapest source of nitrogen.

Quality Hides Will Bring Higher Prices

Exercise the utmost care in removing hides and skins from the carcass with the idea of avoiding cuts and scores. Use fresh, clean salt on hides and skins. There is little strength in spent salt and consequently insufficient curing properties. Quality hides bring higher prices.

Gee but They Go Deep

Pat visited the dentist with his jaw very much swollen from a tooth he desired to have pulled. But when the suffering man got into the chair and saw the gleaming pair of forceps approaching his face he refused to open his mouth.

The dentist quietly told his assistant to prick the patient with a pin, and when Pat opened his mouth to yell the dentist seized the tooth and out it came.

"It didn't hurt as much as you expected, did it?" the dentist asked, smilingly.

"Well, no," replied Pat, hesitatingly, as if doubting the truthfulness of his admission. "But," he added, placing his hand on the spot where the boy had pricked him, "but little did I think the roots would reach down like that."

Find Salt Effective in Killing Barberry*Chemicals to Play Important Part in Eradication.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Chemicals will play an important part this year in the eradication campaign against the common barberry, which aids the spread of black stem rust to the wheat fields. Where only the digging method has been practiced it was difficult to remove all the roots, especially in rocky ground or around tree stumps. Where even the smallest fragments of the roots were not destroyed, sprouts have sprung up the following year, necessitating a repetition of the work. In lawns or gardens where a careful watch can be kept of the places from which bushes have been removed, digging is all right, for in a year or two all roots left at the first digging will have sprouted and can be removed.

To make the eradication of the bushes simple and sure, two chemicals have been found by the United States Department of Agriculture to be effective for use in such places as pastures and wooded lots and along fences where it is difficult either to dig bushes up completely or to locate the exact spots in a resurvey. Miracles on Every Side

When the Greek religion began to pass away Greece was a land of miracles. Everything that happened was regarded as a miracle. There were winking pictures, sweating statues, statues that wept and shed tears, paintings that could blush, statues that would brandish spears and swords, images that talked, images that bled real blood from wounds and unblemished statues and shrines which healed wounds and made the blind see and the deaf hear. The tools with which the mythical Trojan horse was made were on exhibition as was the spear of Achilles.

Sheep Came to U. S. Early

Some of the sheep which roam the ranges today are Mayflower descendants, for Wiltshires of large size and the wool came to Plymouth, says Nature Magazine. The Dutch brought to New York long-legged sheep with coats of coarse wool, and the Swedish settlers of New Jersey came with rams and ewes to settle in the new land.

Fuller's Earth

For ages fuller's earth was used by the weavers for absorbing the oil in woolen cloth. This ancient use has now become almost a thing of the past, other processes being used, but as a toilet powder fuller's earth is invaluable, and it is still in great demand for clearing mineral oils and in the manufacture of soap.

CLORINDA FINDS HER OWN KIND

By DORA DEEN

WHEN the home was sold, and Clorinda left alone in the world, with little money after debts were paid, she wondered what she might do to earn her living. This thought in mind, she wrote a commendable application for the place of English teacher in Trainor hall. Clorinda tried to find contentment in pursuance of her duty among the young women who learned from her. Often when the maidens of Trainor hall were safe in their dormitories for the night Clorinda would walk the gardens alone or sit at the grand piano, playing soft music which might not disturb. And the secret fact that she frequently was possessed of a wild desire to give vent to her pent-up emotions in a dance across the lawn in the moonlight, or to allow her fingers to race over the piano keys in a merry-mad melody, caused poor Clorinda vague fear for the state of her mind.

Then, Peggy Price came to school. There was no doubt of Miss Peggie's eligibility; her father's name was well known in the world of finance. Still the unmoved Misses Trainor saw to it that the happy young girl from the great city was allowed no deviation from rigid rule. To Clorinda, in her heart loneliness, the merry little creature came as a warning gleam of sunlight in a darkened place. The two became at once close friends and companions, Clorinda forgetting in the growing happy intimacy that a Trainor teacher may not companion with her pupils.

The Misses Trainor for a while held their peace while Peggy brought laughter provoking epistles from friends at home to read to the sympathetic Clorinda. She would bring her mending to do where Clorinda sat at the piano, in a spare hour. And the two frequently might be seen walking arm in arm through the gardens. The shocking sound of the English teacher's soft laughter mingled with the joyous scream of Peggy's at last brought the sisters to action.

The remiss instructor was made aware of her sins of commission and duly rebuked with the understanding that such unequal friendship must be discontinued. "If you must have an intimate," remarked Miss Sophia Trainor, "why do you not choose a woman of suitable age? Miss Causley, I am certain, would be helpful to you, as such an associate."

Miss Causley! Unconsciously, Clorinda winced. Miss Causley's chief topic of conversation was bound to be the discouraging failures of those under her charge—uncharitable criticism of those above her in school rule. While the sunny Peggy—Clorinda's blue eyes filled with tears, she had even thought that her own friendship might be helpful to the motherless girl. Unsuitable? It was Peggy's indignant exclamation which recalled Clorinda.

"I heard what Miss Trainor said," asserted Peggy, "and if anyone could be more unsuitable for your friendly consideration than the pompous Causley, or the smug Trainors, I'd like to know it."

"Peggy," sighed Clorinda, "the manner in which you refer to your superiors proves that I have neglected my duty."

"Piffle!" snapped Peggy cheerfully. "You know Cloie, that yourself and your influence have alone made this place bearable, or improving to me. Without you—I go."

"Cloie!" Miss Sophia repeated the name in horror, "Is it so that you have been allowed to address an instructor in my school?"

Peggy nodded; her tone was grave. She had not heard the familiar name since she left home. "I hoped it might make it less desolate to hear it here."

That evening, seated in her small room in the school, Clorinda received notice of her dismissal. She was charged with not practicing proper discipline. Sadly she gathered together her belongings. Where would she go now she wondered. Where seek or learn new employment?

Peggy Price dashed into the room. Peggy's eyes were shining bright as usual; her smile had its accustomed good cheer. "I've quit," she said briefly. "Asked for a vacation, and then took it without waiting for an answer. And if they don't like it, I'm not coming back. But here is my surprise. I am taking you home with me for a visit also, without awaiting your consent. And, Cloie darling, I'm going to make a golden coach for you, out of your pumpkin shell. Do you think I mean to be separated so easily?"

So Clorinda went to the beautiful big city home in its beautiful city park and her soft laughter mingled unrepined with Peggy's spontaneous mirth.

And not long after the Misses Trainor were astonished to read in the city paper the following announcement:

"The marriage of Miss Clorinda Dawn to Mr. Porter Price was solemnized last evening at the Price family home, on River drive. Miss Peggy Price was the only attendant."

"She will be very rich," said Miss Sophia.

"She will be happy," said the sister, "for Porter Price is known to be an admirable man."

And at this moment a radiant Peggy was saying to her new stepmother: "Cloie, I've got you forever; what happy times we will have."

Simplicity Noted in Spring Modes

Designs and Colors Quiet in Tone as New Styles Arrive From Paris.

An interesting element in the subject of fashions in this day and age is that of frequent change, of novelty. The one thing that those of the world of fashion will not endure is monotony, declares a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. Designers, purveyors and the women who go in for style all conspire to keep things moving, to search diligently for new ideas and to create pictures that stimulate all of the industries from the spinning wheel to the atelier.

The art of dressing has developed so steadily toward high standards and ideals of beauty and significance that it must now be reckoned with respectfully and engages the serious attention not only of women but also of men, though the men may not admit it frankly.

This season's styles are being established with more marked character and finer artistic expression than designers have shown for several years.

Tailored Tunic in Navy Charmine Bordered With Tiny Tucks. White Broadcloth Embroidered in Blue and Green Bands the Skirt Bottom and Forms the Undersleeves.

and new names have attracted the attention of the best public. Some of the extravagances of a season or two ago have disappeared, others have been worked into harmonious composition, and countless beautiful things are offered to women of taste, preferably to those that are possessed of a long purse.

Never before have the spring openings, the pageants held by the leading houses in New York, exhibited such variety in the models from Parisian artists. At the private view of advance styles the finest and best have been shown, a really brilliant display.

At the premiere of one establishment, which has hitherto been regarded as out of type and somewhat sketchy in composition, there was evident a tendency toward refinement, to the conventional in art reflected in color harmony and symmetry of line. There was far less of the bizarre, the unbalanced extremes than formerly, less to shock the taste and much to charm.

There are combinations of materials and shadings this year that will beautify many of the women who will wear the models, and the effects in gowns, wraps and millinery are flattering rather than trying.

It has been quite impossible to ignore the importance of colors in the new styles. They are definite and striking, but artistically so. As if emblematic of the season, green is having a vogue. The demand for it is evident when several of the leading fashion authorities in this part of the world present their newest and choicest importations of frocks in some shade of green in the proportion of three out of five.

From the Empire green seen in the old brocades and velvets of royalty, to the most delicate sea green, or the freshest apple green, silks, satins, crepes and tulle are shown in the fashionable costumes in every variant for every possible occasion.

Yellow Popular Color.

Next in popularity to the greens is yellow. There are oriole yellow, jonquil, burnt orange, cornsilk, marigold and the shade for which Paris has found a name supposedly fitting—"banane." It is not really like the color of a banana, but an intense, clear canary that simply glows as one's eyes rest upon it.

A Parisian couturiere has created a frock of this banane in satin, with a long trailing scarf of fine chiffon in a somewhat lighter shade.

The beauty of this new shade of yellow, however misnamed, is illustrated in some afternoon and evening gowns presented by a smart New York house. One gown of crepe satin is made simply, with a tendency to the Greek lines in the drapery, opening a petticoat of heavier satin, and with a tracery of silver embroidery on the bodice and down the sides of the overskirt as it opens from the front. The combination of the yellow and silver is the loveliest thing one can fancy.

The same shade is shown in an evening wrap of velvet with deep cape collar of silver lace and bands of black fox fur.

Yellows in many different shades are shown in the alpacas, linens, flannels and heavy cotton fabrics for sports clothes, and in many of the imported materials intended to be used in establishing the modes for summer.

Lanvin, whose evening gowns are most sumptuous, emphasizes yellow in some of his handiwork gowns and wraps, and trims lavishly with silver and gilt and furs—vixon and hare and marabout. His day-time gowns are much less elaborate, and so are his suits for street and morning wear.

The next most conspicuously fashionable note in color is black on white, or white on black, in every conceivable mood and tense. The black and white vogue has been increasing since the first advance spring styles from anywhere and everywhere were displayed, and now some of the most swaggy styles by leading artists are developed in this combination.

Worth leads the way in these, with some costumes of great distinction. A favorite model is made of black net and chantilly lace over white satin, with a sharp defining motif of black velvet and silver in the girdle.

From this same authority is shown too, an evening wrap of cloth of silver applied with a bold conventionalized pattern of flowers and leaves in black velvet, lined with a white satin of brilliant sheen.

In another, a more simple dinner gown of lustrous satin, black is draped over a slip of heavy white, slashed from the arms to the hem at the sides with ornaments of jet.

In Black and White.

Molyneux has designed some charming frocks in black and white. One is of black chantilly over white satin, with two bands of wide silver ribbon on the petticoat, each tied in a bow in front. In an engaging model of decided elegance, Patou, whose atelier this season has achieved new triumphs, combines black satin and deep ivory novelty lace. The satin opens, redingote fashion, in the front and at the sides, showing a chemise slip of the lace underneath. This slip builds the frock up from the low bust line in front, forming short, tight sleeves and a shallow collar effect, and falls in a deep collar at the back.

In the attractive new printed crepes, foulards, organdies and chiffons, black and white is quite the most modish, and the best-known designers are doing charming things in this, looking to the developing season.

At the moment, satin and crepes, contrasting plain white to black with striking effect, are tremendously popular, and are shown to the best possible advantage, while handsome furs are still worn. But furs are gradually giving way before the rage for ostrich. Paris is possessed with the idea of ostrich—in fringes, cascades, plumes and clusters, and in the bonnet, which is displayed with other Parisian novelties, but which is being accepted with some caution by American women of fashion.

Here, too, Molyneux leads the way, and has created some beautiful, graceful and truly fairy-like frocks that flutter with ostrich.

The fascination of the new styles, added to the beauty of color, is in the fabrics which invariably appeal to one's feeling for comfort. None of the rough, warm looking, muddy colored stuffs that have in past seasons been regarded as smart are shown in the spring styles. Most of the new weaves are grateful to the eye and pleasant to the touch.

The poplins have a new exquisite luster and softness that are delicious. The alpacas, unlike the harsh, wiry variety of former seasons, are subtly deceiving, and would invite one's soul on a sultry day in May. The pongees are of a finer, silkier grade than has ever before been marketed.

FICKARDT'S ROUP AND CHOLERA DROPS

On May 7, 1924, I called on Elmer Doner, Ashville, R. F. D. No. 1, and he told me the following:—

I bought four hundred (400) chicks of a hatchery and while there I bought some tablets to prevent disease or cure them if they were sick. Very soon the chicks began to die, I tried the tablets that I had obtained at the hatchery. I then bought other tablets liquids and powders, all nationally advertised remedies, but none of them did any good and my chicks kept on dying until I had lost 250.

A friend of mine told me of Fickardt's Roup and Cholera drops, at that time I had ten sick chicks in a pen separated from the well stock and I really considered them as good as dead.

I began to use Fickardt's Roup and Cholera drops with all my chicks, both well and sick. Two of the sick ones died, the other eight recovered and I have not lost any others since I began to use Fickardt's Roup and Cholera drops over a month ago.

I would have probably thought that the disease had run its course if it had not been for the fact that these that were sick recovered, but seeing the sick ones get well has convinced me that Fickardt's Roup and Cholera drops cured them.

Miracles on Every Side
When the Greek religion began to pass away Greece was a land of miracles. Everything that happened was regarded as a miracle. There were winking pictures, sweating statues, statues that wept and shed tears, paintings that could blush, statues that would brandish spears and swords, images that talked, images that bled real blood from wounds and numberless statues and shrines which healed wounds and made the blind see and the deaf hear. The tools with which the mythical Trojan horse was made were on exhibition as was the spear of Achilles.

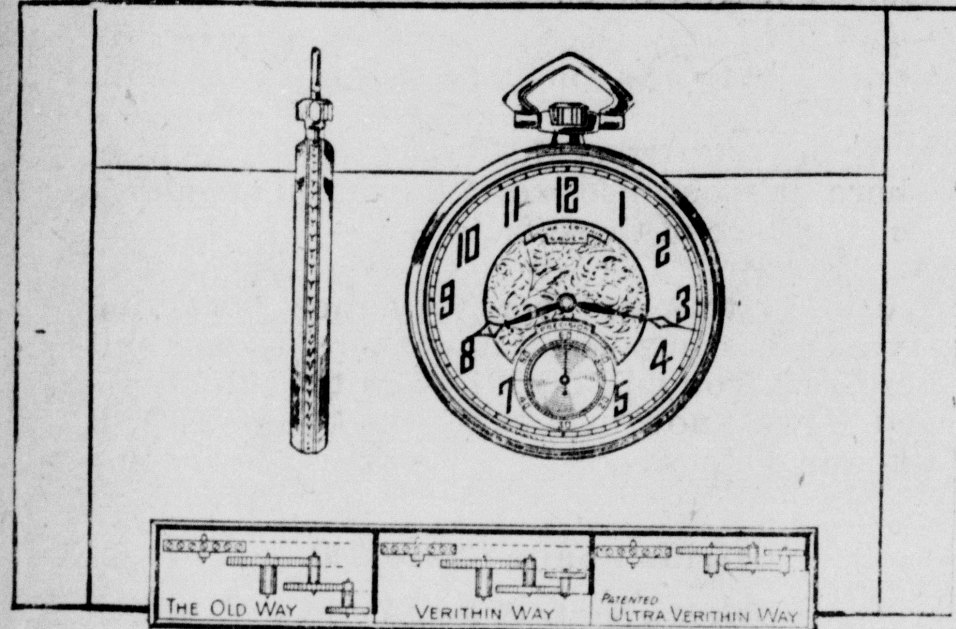

Sheep Came to U. S. Early
Some of the sheep which roam the ranges today are Mayflower descendants, for Wiltshires of large size and the wool came to Plymouth, says Nature Magazine. The Dutch brought New York long-legged sheep with coats of coarse wool, and the Swedish settlers of New Jersey came with rams and ewes to settle in the new land.

Fuller's Earth
For ages fuller's earth was used by the weavers for absorbing the oil in woolen cloth. This ancient use has now become almost a thing of the past, other processes being used, but as a toilet powder fuller's earth is invaluable, and it is still in great demand for clearing mineral oils and in the manufacture of soap.

Silver Hoarded in India
Financial experts have long been baffled by the insatiable demand for silver that comes from India. It is assumed that the natives hoard it or convert it into jewelry. Silver literally pours into India year after year and is never sent out again in any quantity.

CLORINDA FINDS HER OWN KIND

By DORA DEEN
(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

WHEN the home was sold, and Clorinda left alone in the world, with little money after debts were paid, she wondered what she might do to earn her living. This thought in mind, she wrote a commendable application for the place of English teacher in Trainor hall. Clorinda tried to find contentment in pursuance of her duty among the young women who learned from her. Often when the maidens of Trainor hall were safe in their dormitories for the night Clorinda would walk the gardens alone or sit at the grand piano, playing soft music which might not disturb. And the secret fact that she frequently was possessed of a wild desire to give vent to her pent-up emotions in a dance across the lawn in the moonlight, or to allow her fingers to race over the piano keys in a merry-mad melody, caused poor Clorinda vague fear for the state of her mind. Then, Peggy Price came to school. There was no doubt of Miss Peggy's eligibility; her father's name was well known in the world of finance. Still the unmoved Misses Trainor saw to it that the happy young girl from the great city was allowed no deviation from rigid rule. To Clorinda, in her heart loneliness, the merry little creature came as a warming gleam of sunlight in a darkened place. The two became at once close friends and companions, Clorinda forgetting in the growing happy intimacy that a Trainor teacher may not companion with her pupils. The Misses Trainor for a while held their peace while Peggy brought laughter provoking epistles from friends at home to read to the sympathetic Clorinda. She would bring her mending to do where Clorinda sat at the piano, in a spare hour. And the two frequently might be seen walking arm in arm through the gardens. The shocking sound of the English teacher's soft laughter mingled with the joyous scream of Peggy's at last brought the sisters to action. The remiss instructor was made aware of her sins of commission and duly rebuked with the understanding that such unequal friendship must be discontinued. "If you must have an intimate," remarked Miss Sophia Trainor, "why do you not choose a woman of suitable age? Miss Causley, I am certain, would be helpful to you, as such an associate." Miss Causley! Unconsciously, Clorinda winced. Miss Causley's chief topic of conversation was bound to be the discouraging failures of those under her charge—uncharitable criticism of those above her in school rule. While the sunny Peggy—Clorinda's blue eyes filled with tears, Peggy had been happy with her; she had even thought that her own friendship might be helpful to the motherless girl. Unsuitable? It was Peggy's indignant exclamation which recalled Clorinda. "I heard what Miss Trainor said," asserted Peggy, "and if anyone could be more unsuitable for your friendly consideration than the pompous Causley, or the smug Trainors, I'd like to know it." "Peggy," sighed Clorinda, "the manner in which you refer to your superiors proves that I have neglected my duty." "Piffle!" snapped Peggy cheerfully. "You know Clorinda, that yourself and your influence have alone made this place bearable, or improving to me. Without you—I go." "Clorinda!" Miss Sophia repeated the name in horror, "is it so that you have been allowed to address an instructor in my school?" Peggy nodded; her tone was grave. She had not heard the familiar name since she left home. "I hoped it might make it less desolate to hear it here." That evening, seated in her small room in the school, Clorinda received notice of her dismissal. She was charged with not practicing proper discipline. Sadly she gathered together her belongings. Where would she go now she wondered. Where seek or learn new employment? Peggy Price dashed into the room. Peggy's eyes were shining bright as usual; her smile had its accustomed good cheer. "I've quit," she said briefly. "Asked for a vacation, and then took it without waiting for an answer. And if they don't like it, I'm not coming back. But here is my surprise. I am taking you home with me for a visit also, without awaiting your consent. And, Clorinda darling, I'm going to make a golden coach for you, out of your pumpkin shell. Do you think I mean to be separated so easily?" So Clorinda went to the beautiful big city home in its beautiful city park and her soft laughter mingled unimpaired with Peggy's spontaneous mirth. And not long after the Misses Trainor were astonished to read in the city paper the following announcement: "The marriage of Miss Clorinda Dawn to Mr. Porter Price was solemnized last evening at the Price family home, on River drive. Miss Peggy Price was the only attendant." "She will be very rich," said Miss Sophia. "She will be happy," said the sister, "for Porter Price is known to be an admirable man." And at this moment a radiant Peggy was saying to her new stepmother: "Clorinda, I've got you forever; what happy times we will have."

Simplicity Noted in Spring Modes

Designs and Colors Quiet in Tone as New Styles Arrive From Paris.

An interesting element in the subject of fashions in this day and age is that of frequent change, of novelty. The one thing that those of the world of fashion will not endure is monotony, declares a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. Designers, purveyors and the women who go in for style all conspire to keep things moving, to search diligently for new ideas and to create pictures that stimulate all of the industries from the spinning wheel to the atelier. The art of dressing has developed so steadily toward high standards and ideals of beauty and significance that it must now be reckoned with respectfully and engages the serious attention not only of women but also of men, though the men may not admit it frankly. This season's styles are being established with more marked character and finer artistic expression than designers have shown for several years.

and new names have attracted the attention of the best public. Some of the extravagances of a season or two ago have disappeared, others have been worked into harmonious composition, and countless beautiful things are offered to women of taste, preferably to those that are possessed of a long purse. Never before have the spring openings, the pageants held by the leading houses in New York, exhibited such variety in the models from Parisian artists. At the private view of advance styles the finest and best have been shown, a really brilliant display. At the premiere of one establishment, which has hitherto been regarded as out of type and somewhat sketchy in composition, there was evident a tendency toward refinement, to the conventional in art reflected in color harmony and symmetry of line. There was far less of the bizarre, the unbalanced extremes than formerly, less to shock the taste and much to charm. There are combinations of materials and shadings this year that will beautify many of the women who will wear the models, and the effects in gowns, wraps and millinery are flattering rather than trying. It has been quite impossible to ignore the importance of colors in the new styles. They are definite and striking, but artistically so. As if emblematic of the season, green is having a vogue. The demand for it is evident when several of the leading fashion authorities in this part of the world present their newest and choicest importations of frocks in some shade of green in the proportion of three out of five. From the Empire green seen in the old brocades and velvets of royalty, to the most delicate sea green, or the freshest apple green, silks, satins, crepes and tulle are shown in the fashionable costumes in every variant for every possible occasion. Yellow Popular Color. Next in popularity to the greens is yellow. There are oriole yellow, jonquill, burnt orange, cornsilk, marigold and the shade for which Paris has found a name supposedly fitting—"banane." It is not really like the color of a banana, but an intense, clear canary that simply glows as one's eyes rest upon it. A Parisian couturiere has created a frock of this banane in satin, with a long trailing scarf of fine chiffon in a somewhat lighter shade. The beauty of this new shade of yellow, however misnamed, is illustrated in some afternoon and evening gowns presented by a smart New York house. One gown of crepe satin is made simply, with a tendency to the Greek lines in the drapery, opening a petticoat of heavier satin, and with a tracery of silver embroidery on the bodice and down the sides of the overskirt as it opens from the front. The combination of the yellow and silver is the loveliest thing one can fancy. The same shade is shown in an evening wrap of velvet with deep cape collar of silver lace and bands of black fox fur. Yellows in many different shades are shown in the alpacas, linens, flannels and heavy cotton fabrics for sports clothes, and in many of the imported materials intended to be used in establishing the modes for summer. Lanvin, whose evening gowns are most sumptuous, emphasizes yellow in some of his handsomest gowns and wraps, and trims lavishly with silver and gilt and furs—vision and hare and marabout. His day-time gowns are much less elaborate, and so are his suits for street and morning wear. The next most conspicuously fashionable note in color is black on white, or white on black, in every conceivable mood and tense. The black and white vogue has been increasing since the first advance spring styles from anywhere and everywhere were displayed, and now some of the most swagger styles by leading artists are developed in this combination. Worth leads the way in these, with some costumes of great distinction. A favorite model is made of black net and chantilly lace over white satin, with a sharp defining motif of black velvet and silver in the girdle. From this same authority is shown too, an evening wrap of cloth of silver appliqued with a bold conventionalized pattern of flowers and leaves in black velvet, lined with a white satin of brilliant sheen. In another, a more simple dinner gown of lustrous satin, black is draped over a slip of heavy white, slashed from the arms to the hem at the sides with ornaments of jet. In Black and White. Molyneux has designed some charming frocks in black and white. One is of black chantilly over white satin, with two bands of wide silver ribbon on the petticoat, each tied in a bow in front. In an engaging model of decided elegance, Patou, whose atelier this season has achieved new triumphs, combines black satin and deep ivory novelty lace. The satin opens, redingote fashion, in the front and at the sides, showing a chemise slip of the lace underneath. This slip builds the frock up from the low bust line in front, forming short, tight sleeves and a shallow collar effect, and falls in a deep collar at the back. In the attractive new printed crepes, foulards, organdies and chiffons, black and white is quite the most modish, and the best-known designers are doing charming things in this, looking to the developing season. At the moment, satin and crepes, contrasting plain white to black with striking effect, are tremendously popular, and are shown to the best possible advantage, while handsome furs are still worn. But furs are gradually giving way before the rage for ostrich. Paris is possessed with the idea of ostrich—in fringes, cascades, plumes and clusters, and in the bo, which is displayed with other Parisian novelties, but which is being accepted with some caution by American women of fashion. Here, too, Molyneux leads the way, and has created some beautiful, graceful and truly fairy-like frocks that flutter with ostrich. The fascination of the new styles, added to the beauty of color, is in the fabrics which invariably appeal to one's feeling for comfort. None of the rough, warm looking, muddy colored stuffs that have in past seasons been regarded as smart are shown in the spring styles. Most of the new weaves are grateful to the eye and pleasant to the touch. The poplins have a new exquisite luster and softness that are delicious. The alpacas, unlike the harsh, wiry variety of former seasons, are subtly deceiving, and would invite one's soul on a sultry day in May. Traces Origin of the Jag.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, who has looked it up, says that not one case of drunkenness due to whisky or spirits occurred in the world previous to 1106 A. D. Noah did not get drunk on whisky, he got drunk on wine. The Egyptians got drunk on wine and beer. Alexander died drunk and he had never heard of whisky. Egypt and Rome went to the dogs on wine and beer, not whisky. Every denunciation of drunkenness to be found in the Bible, and every case of drunkenness told of in history, refers to wine and beer drunkenness.

FIFTY YEARS PRIESTHOOD

Golden Jubilee of Rev. Father M. M. Meara to be Celebrated.

Served as Pastor of St. Joseph's Church in This City for Twenty Years and for Thirty Years at the Columbus Cathedral—Ceremonies May 30.

Fifty years ago Michael M. Meara was ordained to the priesthood; fifty-two years mark the life of St. Joseph's cathedral, on East Broad street.

Concurrently, the service of the now Rev. Father Meara and that of the church, which has become a powerful institution of Columbus, will be commemorated by the followers of the Roman Catholic faith.

The jubilee, which will be celebrated on Friday, May 30, will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the day when Father Meara was ordained in Columbus by Bishop Rosecrans. His first charge was here, serving as pastor of the cathedral for eight years, the edifice being erected during the time he was in college preparing for his calling.

From this pastorate Father Meara was sent to Circleville, where he served as pastor for 20 years. But Columbus called him again and he returned to this city where he has remained during the past 25 years as pastor of St. Joseph's cathedral.

Father Meara was not content to let the cathedral remain with its first interior decoration and the beautiful church has been redecorated within the past few years. A new altar was built and new seats placed giving a most inviting appearance to the church.

One of the most elaborate of the newer decorations will be the fourteen stations of the cross, which are being made in Italy. They were designed in Venice by the greatest artists of that country, in rare mosaics. These will be placed as soon as they are received at the cathedral.

Another innovation was the installation of an organ costing $36,000. It is the largest in Ohio. Miss Catherine Gleason is the church organist.

The celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of Father Meara was planned by the devoted members of his congregation. He modestly refused at first to have it, but M. S. Connors, Dr. Andre Gray, A. Bringartner and W. J. Dolan, who are in charge of the arrangements, prevailed upon him and the affair promises to be a milestone in this eminent preacher's life.

Right Rev. Bishop Hartley will preside at the ceremonies of the jubilee and Father Meara will sing the high mass at 8 o'clock. A reception in honor of the priest will follow with the singing of the Te Deum following. —Columbus Dispatch.

JACK FROST'S VISIT.

Mr. Frost visited this community Sunday night and his presence was visible Monday morning at 4 o'clock, as he completely covered everything with his white raiment. Whether any damage was done has not been learned. Ice formed and the government thermometer register was 33. A frost last week nipped all the tomato and cabbage plants. Cherries, pears, peaches and apples are forming and it is thought that they are injured.

This county suffered a killing frost May 23, 1895 and corn and potatoes were cut to the ground. The greatest freeze in history was on June 3, 1863, when nearly everything that was green suffered.

NEWEST THING IN PANACEAS

We old-timers can remember when a patent medicine was guaranteed to cure everything from the pip to smallpox, but as a panacea we are inclined to believe bobbed hair has any of the old-fashioned dopes backed off the boards. In conversations we have overheard we have learned among other things that it will Prevent baldness.

Restore that youthful appearance.
Quiet tingling nerves.
Prevent blindness.
Lighten work.
Improve the disposition.
Save money by not buying hairpins.
Cure headaches.
Whiten the teeth.
Help hold husbands, also curing the divorce evil.
And no doubt will also prevent wars reduce taxes, make everybody happy and make the barbers rich.

HERE AND THERE

Cardinal Dubois, Archbishop of Paris, was promoted to be an officer of the Legion of Honor. Signor Massini, novelist, was acquitted at Florence, Italy, of the murder of his wife, whom he shot fatally after a quarrel.

Barron D. Wilkins, wealthy negro cabaret owner in New York, was shot to death for refusing aid to a man known as "Yellow Charleston," after "Yellow" was said by police to have killed a companion in a pool room brawl.

Over 5,000 men are affected by a strike at five collieries of the Hudson Steel company in the Plymouth (Pa.) district. The men walked out in protest against a proposed reduction in wages.

Traces Origin of the Jag.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, who has looked it up, says that not one case of drunkenness due to whisky or spirits occurred in the world previous to 1106 A. D. Noah did not get drunk on whisky, he got drunk on wine. The Egyptians got drunk on wine and beer. Alexander died drunk and he had never heard of whisky. Egypt and Rome went to the dogs on wine and beer, not whisky. Every denunciation of drunkenness to be found in the Bible, and every case of drunkenness told of in history, refers to wine and beer drunkenness.

FIFTY YEARS PRIESTHOOD

Golden Jubilee of Rev. Father M. M. Meara to be Celebrated.

Served as Pastor of St. Joseph's Church in This City for Twenty Years and for Thirty Years at the Columbus Cathedral—Ceremonies May 30.

Fifty years ago Michael M. Meara was ordained to the priesthood; fifty-two years mark the life of St. Joseph's cathedral, on East Broad street.

Concurrently, the service of the now Rev. Father Meara and that of the church, which has become a powerful institution of Columbus, will be commemorated by the followers of the Roman Catholic faith.

The jubilee, which will be celebrated on Friday, May 30, will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the day when Father Meara was ordained in Columbus by Bishop Rosecrans. His first charge was here, serving as pastor of the cathedral for eight years, the edifice being erected during the time he was in college preparing for his calling.

From this pastorate Father Meara was sent to Circleville, where he served as pastor for 20 years. But Columbus called him again and he returned to this city where he has remained during the past 25 years as pastor of St. Joseph's cathedral.

Father Meara was not content to let the cathedral remain with its first interior decoration and the beautiful church has been redecorated within the past few years. A new altar was built and new seats placed giving a most inviting appearance to the church.

One of the most elaborate of the newer decorations will be the fourteen stations of the cross, which are being made in Italy. They were designed in Venice by the greatest artists of that country, in rare mosaics. These will be placed as soon as they are received at the cathedral.

Another innovation was the installation of an organ costing $36,000. It is the largest in Ohio. Miss Catherine Gleason is the church organist.

The celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of Father Meara was planned by the devoted members of his congregation. He modestly refused at first to have it, but M. S. Connors, Dr. Andre A. Bringartner and W. J. Dolan, who are in charge of the arrangements, prevailed upon him and the affair promises to be a milestone in this eminent preacher's life.

Right Rev. Bishop Hartley will preside at the ceremonies of the jubilee and Father Meara will sing the high mass at 8 o'clock. A reception in honor of the priest will follow with the singing of the Te Deum following. —Columbus Dispatch.

JACK FROST'S VISIT.

Mr. Frost visited this community Sunday night and his presence was visible Monday morning at 4 o'clock, as he completely covered everything with his white raiment. Whether any damage was done has not been learned. Ice formed and the government thermometer register was 33. A frost last week nipped all the tomato and cabbage plants. Cherries, pears, peaches and apples are forming and it is thought that they are injured.

This county suffered a killing frost May 23, 1895 and corn and potatoes were cut to the ground. The greatest freeze in history was on June 3, 1863, when nearly everything that was green suffered.
